NEWS ADVISORY

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR JOHN GARAMENDI TO ADDRESS TRAINING PUBLIC SAFETY AND HEALTHCARE EMPLOYEES, OTHER HIGHLY SKILLED WORKERS

SANTA ANA – Lieutenant Governor John Garamendi on Tuesday will join public safety, education, business, and government leaders in discussing solutions to meet California’s critical workforce needs. The informational briefing at the Rancho Santiago Community College District will focus on training for nurses, law enforcement, firefighters, and other vital public safety and healthcare professionals.

Recent reports have shown that California will be facing a shortage of nurses and other highly skilled workers. Garamendi has been touring higher education institutions throughout the state to gain information that will help him create new education and economic development initiatives to ensure that California’s workforce is fully trained for future careers.
