

District-wide Participatory Governance

The participation of faculty, staff, and students at the district level is accomplished through a number of standing committees and workgroups. The primary participatory governance body for RSCCD is the District Council, which is comprised of the leadership of the various constituent organizations as well as the chairs and co-chairs of the five subsidiary governance committees. This document describes the roles and responsibilities of these participatory governance groups, which support district-wide planning and operations. In addition to this district-wide structure, each college in the district has its own participatory governance structure, which is focused on the internal operations of that college.

DISTRICT AND COLLEGE PARTICIPATORY GOVERNANCE

